

PROSPERITY SHOWN IN HOULTON BY
BANK DEPOSITS*Reputation That the Town Has, Backed Up by Figures

In the last two issues of the TIMES reference was made to the prosperity of Aroostook county, and some people questioned that statement as to the solidity of the argument.

This week we will go further and say that while Aroostook is prosperous from a knowledge of general condition, we wish to call the attention to the prosperity of Houlton and there is nothing better to go by than the deposits in our banks, in town.

On Saturday noon at the close of business the four banks in Houlton had deposits amounting to $6,780,506.19, divided as follows:

Houlton Savings Bank $1,806,630.57

First National Bank $992,400.00

Farmers National Bank $1,294,171.73

Houlton Trust Co. $2,687,303.89

These deposits include the checking accounts as well as the savings accounts, as the two National Banks and the Trust Co. each have Savings

Departments in connection with their checking accounts.

As is well known there never has been a time in the history of the United States, when there has been such high wages paid to laborers in different walks of life, as since the ending of the war, in many instances day laborers have and are receiving more for their services than many professional men in the different callings in life. Never have the laboring men and dependent families, spent so much or enjoyed such luxuries as during this era of high wages, and never before have the thrifty saved as much as during this same period, notwithstanding the increase in the cost of every commodity which has to be purchased by the people.

This is a funny world, if all the people were alike there would not be much fun in living, and bearing this fact in mind the question is often asked, why is one man more prosperous than the other, well that is human nature, but the facts are this, when a man is able to save a part of what he earns every day, week or year, then he is sure to prosper, and the sooner in life that a man or woman starts on a definite saving plan, the farther along he or she will be each year. While in the large manufacturing cities and places where the wages are largest, in these towns there has been freer spending, but in a country place like Houlton better judgment is used, and while wages and salaries in a small town like this have not been and will not be as large in comparison

as in the manufacturing centres, yet without doubt more money, in proportion to the amount received, is laid aside each year, and this is the reason that the Banks in Houlton are able to make the fine showing as stated above, they are saving their money, and this applies to the farmer as well as to the town resident.

When you see the deposits in a town's banks as large as they are in Houlton, there you will see prosperity, and when the Banks are prosperous

then the people who live in that town are enjoying prosperity.

As far as the other towns in Aroostook are concerned the same thing would doubtless be true, but the information is not now available, the same as it is in Houlton.

FORGING CHECKS

The Houlton Trust Co. has received the following letter from a Fort Fair-aid business house:

May 8, 1920.

Houlton Trust Company,
Houlton, Maine.

Gentlemen:

During the past week there has been a number of forged checks passed on the different merchants of this town. They all seem to have been made by the same party, using a counter check written in lead pencil and made on different farmers of this town. They are apparently forged by a party using the names thus far of Walter Inman, Frank Inman, and Ernest Ganter. The best description that we are able to get to date is that the party is of about 5 ft. 8 in. in height, about 160 pounds in weight, wearing a blue serge suit, of medium complexion and between 30 or 35 years of age or possibly older.

These checks have been made between the dates of May 1 and May 5 and we feel that there is a chance that he will, or is beginning to operate in some nearby town. We hope you will use effort to cause his apprehension. The checks thus far forged in this town aggregate nearly $75.00 and there may be more to turn up later.

Very truly yours,

Next Monday Mr. Carl Turner, the representative of the Community Chest, will be in Houlton and would like to meet all the signers on the Guarantee, and go over the plans for the coming season's entertainments.

SALVATION ARMY DRIVE

The Salvation Army's Americanization program commendatory reference to which was made by Gov. Calvin Coolidge of Massachusetts in accepting the New England Chairmanship for the Salvation Army 1920 Home Service Appeal was enthusiastically endorsed in resolutions adopted by the Chamber of Commerce of the United States which has just concluded its annual convention in Atlantic City.

Col. Adam Gifford, the New England Commander of the Salvation Army was formally advised today of the action of the United States Chamber. The resolutions follow:

Whereas, The Salvation Army has for years been working on a plan to make good Americans out of foreigners and better Americans out of American citizens, by alleviating suffering and poverty, and

"Whereas, The Salvation Army is proceeding with a plan of Americanization that is in keeping with the program of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States to Americanize the million of honest workers in our land, who are willing to become good citizens if they can only be shown how, with the same high ideals that The Salvation Army held out to the American troops in France, and

"Whereas, The Salvation Army slogan, 'A Man May Be Down, But Never Out,' is an ideal American thought, therefore be it

"Resolved, That the Chamber of Commerce of the United States endorses the Americanization plan of the Salvation Army."

Commenting on the Salvation Army, Homer L. Ferguson, President of the National organization, made the following statement, "We all know the Salvation Army and what it has done; any praise that is added is something that we already know. Those of us who did not know the work of the Salvation Army have been forcibly impressed by the reports of the boys who were 'over there.'"

The campaign in Houlton is now on. Of the amount to be raised, all but 18 per cent. will be used in Houlton. Every giver helps our town.

JOHN C. MCCLUSKEY

John C. McCluskey, who has been identified in business here for a number of years, and until recently a member of the firm of McCluskey Bros. Hardware Co., died Friday morning at his home on School street.

Mr. McCluskey suffered an ill turn a few months ago, due to overwork and the death of his brother George, also a member of the firm, which occurred on March 1st, left the burden of the business too heavy a load to carry and he closed out his business, hoping to regain in a measure his health by a long rest, but complications set in and he passed away early Friday morning.

Mr. McCluskey was born within a few miles of this town 51 years ago and has always lived here. When a young man he was Asst. Postmaster under the late Eben Woodbury, for about 4 years. After leaving the employ of the Government, he formed a partnership with his brother Charles in the livery business and farming, which business developed rapidly.

After severing his connections with the livery business, the firm of McCluskey Bros. Hardware Co. was organized, and during the past 10 years he did a successful business due to his integrity and ability.

He is survived by his wife and five young sons, his mother Mrs. Thaddeus Willett, one brother, Charles, one sister, Mrs. S. C. Webber, besides a half-sister Mrs. W. J. Griffin, two half-brothers, Walter and Fred Willett, to whom the sympathy of the entire community is extended in their bereavement.

Funeral services were held Sunday afternoon from St. Mary's church, Rev. Fr. Silke officiating, burial being made in Evergreen cemetery.

CHILD WELFARE

A most interesting meeting of the Child Welfare Association was held at the High School Auditorium Sunday afternoon.

The meeting was opened with America, sung by all, with Mrs. Rose at the piano. Prayer was offered by Rev. Mr. Speed. Captain Farmer spoke on the "Unfortunate Children of Houlton," and inspired his listeners with the desire to help these "little ones" to become good citizens. Every one should do all he can to help the Salvation Army in its work of rescuing these children.

Mr. Perkins, chairman of the program committee, reported that a skating-rink had been made and kept open a large part of the winter, giving much healthful exercise and pleasure to many people. This has been paid for and much valuable apparatus on hand.

Mr. Perkins said that plans were being made for play-ground activities and for extended work in the Maine Baby Saving Campaign, including Baby Week, a tent at the Houlton Fair, etc.

Rev. Mr. Whiteside pronounced the benediction.

Geo. T. Clark, who has been running the Main street lunch cart for the past year, concluded his lease on Saturday and has opened a light grocery and lunch room on Bangor street, in the Dooscher building.

A Man May Be Down, But He's Never Out*Help the Army in It's Drive May 10-20*FEDERAL APPROPRIATION FOR NATIONAL HIGHWAYS

In connection with the hearings begun this week before the Senate Post Office and Post Roads Committee on a goodly number of highway bills, the comments of Vice-President Thomas R. Marshall at Hot Springs, Ark., just approved and released for publication, are regarded as highly significant coming from the former governor of a northern state. The address was delivered at the big joint convention of the United States Good Roads Association and Bankhead Highway, held at the Arkansas resort, and attended by several thousand delegates, mostly, of course, from southern states. The Vice-President of the United States was the chief speaker of the gathering, and he thus made pointed reference to Federal participation in highway improvement.

"While I feel that the general government, by its benefactions to the several states, is usurping the functions and killing the initiative of the individual states, I am quite convinced that the one good thing which it is doing in this way is the building of good roads. The Federal government has the cleanest, finest, ablest, and most disinterested road engineers in the world. It has, in my opinion, constitutional authority to improve the post roads of the country. But the aid heretofore given has been generously used in piecemeal by rich counties matching their dollars against the general government's dollars."

"I am quite convinced that the congressional sentiment is that the several states of this Union may as well make up their minds that if their is to be further Federal appropriation on the fifty-fifty plan, it must be upon one of two bases: either that the general government shall have exclusive control of all the funds or that the general government will adopt a great trunk system and will construct that system in a state only when the state has contracted to construct an equal mileage of laterals of like character and durability."

That any future Federal appropriations in connection with highways will be accompanied by quite definite Federal insistence as to where and how the money shall be expended in the several states, has been made quite clear during the past week's hearings before the Senate Committee. While Senator Charles E. Townsend, the chairman of the committee, is the sponsor of what is probably the measure commanding the greatest country-wide concern, as it calls for a National system in charge of a Federal commission, other bills by Senator Phipps of Colorado, Senator Chamberlain of Oregon, and Senator Sheppard of Texas, are certain to receive careful scrutiny.

While the Federal Aid Road Act appealed in greater degree to southern and western than it did to eastern states, northern senators generally are now inclined to oppose continuance in any substantial way and a growing number are for transferring the good roads work from the present unsatisfactory bureau plan to the dignity of a department which can function directly.

Chairman George C. Diehl of the A. A. Good Roads Board, when he appeared before the Senate Committee, thus emphasized the position taken over ten years ago by the organized motor car owners:

"The basis upon which must rest the whole structure of good roads throughout the nation is a National system of highways constructed and maintained by a National highway commission at the expense of the nation. There will inevitably follow state and county highway systems built and maintained by the states and counties respectively. These three systems are fundamentally sound economically and will provide all the needed highways for complete National development."

"Inasmuch as two years will be required to perfect a report on the National system, which, by the way, should include a carefully worked out plan for maintenance, we would urge that the Townsend bill be at once adopted, so that the National highway commission can at once begin its labor, as the present rising market of labor and materials should not be used as a pretext for delaying the necessary preliminary work incident to this most important national development."

The R. C. I. Ball team defeated the A. C. I. team at Mars Hill Friday in the opening game of the season by a score of 5-4. Greenlaw did the twirling for Ricker.

CONDITION OF ROADS IN THIS SECTION

Aroostook County has many characteristics which no other place in the United States has. Statistics, which are accurate, show that from 25 miles south of Houlton to the northern border of the county, there is no place in this country that has such soil as this county has for raising potatoes. In almost every cycle of seasons, planting is much later than in towns in the southern part of the state, yet when the harvest comes this section produces the crops almost as soon as they do where the season is earlier.

In the matter of roads, today and even last week, with a few days sunshine the roads dried up much faster than any one could imagine. On Friday two new cars came through from Boston, and while they found some bad places in the road, yet there was not any difficulty in getting through, and on Thursday of last week, it was possible to go out for a pleasure ride as far as Ludlow station, to Hodgdon by the Walker road, and return by way of the Calais road, and there were cars in town from Littleton and Monticello, so that while one would perhaps get much pleasure in going where there was not any improved road, it was very good for pleasure and to get out and see the country on almost any road leading out of Houlton.

COULDN'T COME BACK
POST OFFICE BOWLERS NO MATCH FOR 'DUX'

In a much heralded bowling game, the Post Office team went down to defeat before the "Dux" on Wednesday last.

It was a regular game too, with a good pinfall for both teams, with an even break of luck all the way through. The "Dux" lined up their big five in anticipation of a stiff opposition which did not develop, and the first string saw the "Dux" coming "down the pike" at a 99 clip for the first 3 men up, then Carter spilled 94 thin ones, while Hodgins captured 92, making a total of 156 against 439 for the visitors.

It was a 4 point walk over for the "Dux" and they are highly elated, as to win from a team holding such a reputation, is something to be proud of.

McIntyre for the visitors, as usual rolled a good consistent game as the score will show.

HOULTON MANBUYS WILD LAND
(Freerickton Gleaner.)

Indicative of the demand for all land from which pulpwood can be taken is the announcement of the sale by Edward London, of Canterbury, of 2,200 acres of wild land on the Shogomoc waters in York county, to James M. Pierce of Houlton, Me., and Arthur Patterson of Penobscot, Me.

The price is not announced, but the deed has been recorded in the York county office here, and this morning Recorder Thomas H. Colter said there had been an unusually large number of transfers of woodlands in this county recently. "Americans from Maine and other New England States seem to be buying every acre of woodland they can get so as to secure pulpwood to be shipped to the United States," said Recorder Colter.

CHURCH OF THE GOOD SHEPHERD

Next Thursday is Ascension Day which will be observed by a celebration of the Holy Communion at 8 a. m. and Choral evensong with sermon at 7.30.

Next Sunday the Rev. J. Edward Hand, rector of St. Johns, Bangor will preach at both Services. Rev. H. Scott Smith is preaching for Mr. Hand at St. Johns, Bangor.

POTATOES

The local market is not very active buyers are paying from $10.00 to 10.50 with few offerings.

The Produce News says:—

Remarkably high prices are being realized for the first arrivals of Florida potatoes, $18 @ 20 for primes, $19 for No. 2s and $15 for No. 3s. A few extra fancy Rose brought, $21 bbl. Previous to this week Florida shipments had been from other points besides from Hastings, but this week fairly liberal and by next week the movement will be well under way. Advices from Hastings state that eight cars were shipped from there Monday, 40 Tuesday and 6 Wednesday, receipts here have averaged 3 @ 4 cars daily. Receivers feel that present prices cannot be possibly maintained and look for a decided decline next week. The demand is active and as the quality and condition are exceptionally good, the stock is moving into consumption as freely as the high receipts warrant. The potatoes are making fairly good time shipping point. Some are coming in barrels supply in Hastings is limited and it is expected that a greater quantity will be shipped in this package than normally.

Old potatoes while still high, are not selling quite as well as previously because of more liberal receipts of new Florida stock. State and Maine potatoes are selling around $11 @ 11.50 per 150 lb bag, with 165 lb bags bringing $1 @ 2 more. There are fairly liberal supplies of Danish potatoes on the market and these are moving fairly well at $8 @ 10 bag.

The market on Bermuda potatoes is easy, with No. 1 stock bringing $23; No. 2s, $21, and No. 3s, $19. The boat this week had 3,628 bbls. in its cargo.

Married at the Methodist parsonage Woodstock, April 21st by Rev. S. Howard, Roy M. Mitchell to Mrs. Jennie C. Linton, both of Littleton, Maine.

Mother's Day service was postponed at the Methodist church until next Sunday morning on account of the storm last Sunday. Mrs. Brooks will sing a solo and the choir an Anthem and the subject of the sermon will be "The Story of Ruth."

CHIEF ENGINEER BURPEE TO GIVE ENTERTAINMENT

The young people have fortunately secured Mr. Burpee to give an entertainment as a part of a Backward Social in the Congregational church within the near future. A Backward Social should prove the most interesting and entertaining of the Christian Endeavor Societies. The young people of the Free Baptist and First Baptist churches have kindly consented to join in the entertainment with their social committees.

Mr. Burpee will give his latest illustrated lecture "My Trip up the Allagash." This should prove interesting to those who have not as yet had the privilege to visit the Allagash region. Watch for the date and particulars of the social and entertainment. Only the price of an adults ticket to the movies minus the war tax. Bring plenty of pennies.

Help talk up the young peoples social and give Christian Endeavor a boost.

JUNIOR MUSICAL

The entertainment given by Houlton's junior musical talent under the auspices of the Houlton Music Club with Mrs. P. L. B. Ebbett, chairman, was one of the best ever given in the history of the club. The music was of a high class and all the selections were excellent and well rendered.

The duet by Miss Elizabeth Ebbett and George Ebbett deserves special mention, for it was a difficult selection and was played with unusual accuracy of detail and power of expression. These musicals occurring each year are valuable in helping to develop the musical ability of the children as well as in entertaining the older people and they deserve a wide patronage.

GARAGES OPEN SUNDAY

The edit which went forth from the Sheriff's office closing the Garages on Sunday, or rather placing such conditions on sales on that day, as to compel them to close, rather than to put them into effect, has been recalled, so that they will keep open as heretofore.

This ruling, which was the enforcement of an old "Blue Law," would have been a great detriment to every citizen of the county, not so much from the local standpoint as the hardship that would have been imposed upon the strangers within our gates, who would not have known about it until after they had reached the "Garden of Maine."

RICKER SENIORS

Miss Frances Hodgson Burnett's story "Esmeralda" was the play given by the R. C. I. Seniors on Friday evening at the Heywood, before a crowded house, and all pronounced it one of the best.

The parts as assigned, were well taken and the wholesome story of country life was portrayed in a splendid manner.

Mr. Forest Fleming acted as coach for the Seniors.

GEN. PERSHING TO

Pershing, the commander of the American Expeditionary Forces in France, will arrive in Maine on Monday, May 24, and remain here until the following Saturday, when he will leave Presque Isle for Boston, where he has an engagement the next day. The trip through the state will be made by automobile.

Gen. Pershing will under the present tentative plans, pass Monday in Saco, Biddeford and Portland, going to Poland Spring for the night. On Tuesday he will visit Bates college at Lewiston, Bowdoin college at Brunswick, and Bath, arriving at Augusta that evening.

It is also expected that Presque Isle will be reached about 3.30 o'clock in the afternoon, which will be the last stop on the trip.

Gov. Milliken, Adj. General Presson, members of the council, members of the staff and members of the press will accompany Gen. Pershing on the trip.

COMMUNICATION

Charles H. Fogg, Editor,
Houlton Times,
Houlton, Maine.

Dear Sir:

I am enclosing a copy of letter which I recently sent to the Aroostook Republican and which that paper has not seen fit to print. I think it would be only fair that the citizens of Aroostook County should know all the facts in connection with the criticism in the Aroostook Republican, and to that end the Commission would very much appreciate it if you would publish the letter.

Very truly yours,
PAUL D. SARGENT
Chief Engineer.

April 24, 1920.

Lyman J. Pendell, Editor,
Aroostook Republican,
Caribou, Maine.

I have before me your criticism of the State Highway Commission as contained in your paper bearing date of April 22nd. I am glad to see that you have correctly quoted the Commission as being opposed to the policy of constructing with State money, roads in the built up or congested portion of any town, s for the work which the Commission has advertised for bid. I will say that no part of this work is in the "built up or congested portion" of any city or town. Our records in this office are all kept under the name of the township in which the work is located. For example, when we speak of the City of Bangor or the City of Westbrook, our records comprise all of the roads lying within the township. The sections of road which we have advertised for bid according to the advertisements now running, might be compared to the road between Caribou and Presque Isle, that is to say that portion of the road which was reconstructed a few years ago through the cooperation of the two towns and the State. The road in Westbrook for example, which is advertised, begins at the Riverton Bridge, if you happen to know where that is, and runs toward Windham. No part of this work is in the city limits of Westbrook.

I trust you will be fair enough to give this communication the same prominence you did your criticism of the Commission.

Very truly yours,
PAUL D. SARGENT
Chief Engineer.

Guy C. Porter and wife returned home Monday from a few days visit in Boston.

MAKE APPLICATIONS FOR TROUT FRY NOW

Augusta, May 6.

It was stated Thursday at the Inland Fisheries and Game Department that it would be well for persons desiring trout fry to send in their applications, as the time for the distribution of young trout fry from the State fish hatcheries was near at hand and the department had already begun making the allotments on such applications. Shipments will probably begin this week from the Camden hatchery.

VALUE OF OBSTACLES

We were talking with a gentleman the other day about the rise of boys and young men, and he had many observations to relate, all of which taught the lesson that success starts with obstacles. A young man who has had no obstacles to surmount will seldom be successful in any department of life he may enter. It is quite impossible to expect anything great of a boy who is fed with a silver spoon and grows up amid a life of ease. It is the resistance that a body encounters that develops his powers. He must carry rocks, and not feathers. If he expects to gain strength, so a boy should not wish for an easy way through which to reach success. If he is to be a scholar, a great merchant, a captain of industry or an efficient manager of anything good, he must begin down low, where there is work to do. A boy cannot loaf his way into great achievement; he has to struggle for it. The boy who knows this and fears not will make a man of himself. None others need apply.

THE INTER-CHURCH WORLD MOVEMENT

Christianity forged ahead for nearly 20 centuries. The history of the world from the introduction of the Christian religion was practically the history of that religion. Then, there was a sudden lapse in Christian influence. It may have been longer than it seemed in coming, but we discovered it with surprise all at once. The greatest war of history could not have happened if the influence of the religion of the Man who taught men to love their neighbors as themselves had been powerful in the minds of men and rulers of men. When the war came there were two anxieties. First, probably, was the anxiety as to how the contest would result, could the German hordes be beaten and civilization saved? And, secondly, what was to become of the church which had fostered and advanced that civilization? It must have lost its grip on the minds and hearts of men, else millions would not be pitted in savage strife against their brother millions.

The war ended. Germany was beaten. Civilization had one more chance. It was not yet destined to ruin. Then the anxious inquiry was put forth with renewed earnestness. What of the future? Politics cannot save the world in this crisis. Good government, which is the end aimed at by good politics, can do its part, but even good government cannot hope to control the motives of men. Nothing does this, nothing controls those motives for good, save the spirit of the religion as taught in Galilee 2,000 years ago. Other religions may have the same end in view, may be powerful where accepted, but so far as America is concerned, at least, its only hope is in the resurrection of the Christian religion.

The war was followed by almost universal unrest. It became evident that the spirit of selfishness was taking possession of men in ever enlarging circles. And the spirit of selfishness abroad in a land like ours is more of a menace than the German war hordes could ever be. The spirit of selfishness is in direct contrast with the spirit of the religion which Jesus taught. If it is to be cast out that religion must be revived.

It may not have been the highest conception of the duty of the hour which led devoted men to determine upon a "drive for money" with which to call the world back to its senses again. But it was the drive to which the leaders turned in their anxiety to do what could be done for rechristening humanity. Denominationalism was largely sunk out of sight. Thirty different "beliefs" united in a grand effort to raise enough money to pay the way for the effort that it was felt that the church ought to make in its own behalf and eventually in behalf of mankind.

The "drive" has succeeded splendidly. It will not be for lack of means if the church does not increase its influence from this day out and take the control of the motives of men which it used to have and which the world so much needs today.

Money cannot enhance spirituality, but money can meet the foes of spirituality on their own ground, it can furnish a livelihood for those who are devoting their lives to its promotion. In this world its necessity seems to be demonstrated, and the Protestant evangelical churches will be amply supplied with money for the next five years to do the work which is in store for them. The world needs that work. One dreads to anticipate the result if it is not done and well done. Splendid was the spirit with which the money raising task was carried out. Labor and sacrifice have done their part. The generations to come will be the better for it all. The divisions of creeds, not yet all obliterated, have been greatly lessened. It may be that these will gradually grow less. It is so to be hoped.

The woes of the world can be healed, if at all, by the advancement of the cause for which all the efforts of the past week have been put forth. Less of creed and more of Christianity is to be the modern savior of the world. Without it the world must sink in wretchedness and degradation. The workers who have wrought so nobly and who have accomplished so much through the Inter-Church World Movement are entitled to thanks and congratulations. May the result in the end be all that could be desired!

SAFETY FIRST

WITH INVESTMENTS

For years the columns of the press have teemed with crusades against stock issues of doubtful merit. Unfortunately, this missionary work appeared for a long time to be utterly thrown away. It seemed impossible to educate the masses to realize the folly of casting their savings into a bottomless pit. They continued to render tribute to the despoilers to the amount of hundreds of millions of dollars annually. The situation was most discouraging to those who would reform it. But lately there have come signs of a change in the attitude of the people. The repeated printed warnings are beginning to show their effect, and at least a portion of the public is breaking away from the ranks of credulity.

The farmers of the Middle West, it is reported, have largely ceased to plunge on oil and other highly speculative stocks and are putting their money into investment issues. Instead of selling Liberty bonds to obtain worthless stock, as is the custom in too many parts of the land, these agriculturists are buying more Government obligations, taking advantage of present low prices, on which the yield is really substantial. Other high-grade issues are also in considerable demand among these sensible buyers. This is a most encouraging symptom and should it become apparent throughout the United States it would mean much for national well-being. There is little use of making and saving money if it is frittered away in extravagance or in gambling ventures. It is only through thrift followed by wise investment that solid foundations for prosperity are laid.

In these enlightened days there is absolutely no excuse for being duped and fleeced in matters of investment. For persons who are ignorant of security values there are many sources of information right at hand. They can consult men connected with the banks and other wide awake business men or they can write letters of inquiry to the financial editors of the newspapers. Usually they will receive sound advice, though no adviser can wholly above error. The uninformed should never accept the mere say-so of the hired salesman of stocks or bonds. Assertions should be verified before dollars are given.

It would be the height of wisdom and safety if every man should regard the money he possesses in the light of a trust fund. The honest custodian of funds held in trust feels a grave responsibility. He seeks to do intelligently his duty by the owners of the sums in his charge. Now every man with capital, small or large, is virtually a trustee for somebody—for his dependents or for himself. He should, therefore, be as careful as possible to make good employment of the money he has acquired. A poor investment reacts adversely on the individual. It lowers his morale, sours him, lessens his account as a citizen, while it may impose suffering on those whose protector against want he should be. On the other hand, a paying investment makes one more of a man, and a better factor in the community, while it may add to the happiness of many besides the investor. One of the essential steps in making the world better and brighter is to teach men and women what to do and what not to do with their money.

The example of the farmers of the Middle West should be considered by the denizens of the cities. It is a popular notion that the inhabitants of the rural districts are the easiest marks for fakirs and swindlers. But the city contingent in the army of the befooled is extremely large. Judging from hundreds of letters making confessions which have received by men interested, people in the big towns have not all had their financial eyes teeth cut as yet. The Middle West farmers' investment movement should spread all over the land, and everybody should join it. It would put an end to a great deal of unnecessary flurry, unrest and loss and it would prove a lasting benefit to all concerned.

WHAT TIME IS IT?

"This morning I met an esteemed friend on his way to his office," says a Portland, Maine writer. "He was as usual both affable and cheerful and under the influence of the sunshine which has been all too scarce these days, he was inclined to throw open his overcoat, and so revealed a shiny, ornate watch chain strung across his ample front. As he had on his wrist watch, a hangover from his captivity in the recent late unpleasantness, I was moved to remark upon the fact that he appeared well provided with Time, in fact seemed to have Time to spare. He admitted that he had plenty of Time even to pass the Time of day with me, and hauled from his vest pocket, attached to the end of the shiny ornate watch chain, an Ingersoll, equally and shiny and I could seem to meet this double time business which is hovering over us just now was to have two sets of timekeepers, one for the standard and one for the new fangled time. So I have the wrist watch for the daylight and the Ingersoll for the Standard. No that's not right, it's the other way round. Now is it though? Honest I can't tell, but anyhow, I have all the Time there is and between the two times am sure to fall to the ground."

The poor man is only one of hundreds who are similarly rattled over the very simple proposition of selecting their own Time for things and who are trying to go on the principle of a time for everything and everything in its time. The stay-at-home isn't having quite so much difficulty over the sporadic and eruptive new rules about the time: It's the person who travels a bit who is already half-crazy over the situation and more to come. One town has daylight, the next town is going by the old time. Yesterday morning I went to the station to try to plan a little trip about the county, and get in three meals a day. "What time does the 7.15 train go to B?" I inquired. "The 7.15 train leaves at 8.25 by the new schedule and reaches B at 8.10," was the reply. Just like that!

"So this morning, or to begin at the beginning, last night, I set my watch ahead an hour to meet the new conditions and putting it under my pillow slept the sleep of the just, because if I were to arise at half after seven I would have plenty of time to get the 7.15 that went at 8.35. And waking with the robins in early morning light, I looked at the watch and behold it had stopped when I wound it, and whether it was five, or six, or seven-

I did not know. The clock in the steeple struck six but was it six by the old time or did the bellman remember to turn backward the Time in its flight? Taking no chances I got to the station, to take the 7.15 and found it was 6.40 old Time. Back up town I hustled to get some breakfast, and incidentally the correct and new time for my watch. And it seemed half a day before the 8.35 really pulled out of the city, at 7.15 and landed, me in the town of B at 8.10, where the old time was still in vogue. But the trolleys running through the town were on the new time, so at 10.35 by the village clock I took the 11.30 car for the town of C passing through G which recorded 11.55, and then coming to W, where the town clock said 11.10, and arriving in R, promptly at 11.35, five minutes before I felt B, as you may notice. By this time I was all up in the air, and the fact that the town of W was a junction town did not help me any. Was I too late or too early for the connecting train I wanted to make? It didn't much matter because I found at the station that owing to some mix-up of time down the road, two trains had spilled themselves over the roadbeds and it was a case of wait. One of the engineers swore that his wife had changed his watch time unbeknownst to him, at the same time she set the clocks ahead, and he had been trying to make up time all morning without knowing just what did all him.

"I decided after a time to call on an old friend in town, and did so, apologizing for coming right at luncheon time, (hoping she had luncheon ready and in abundance all the while.) She informed me that lunch hour was past as she not only set her clock ahead but her husband had done the same thereby bringing luncheon some time in the middle of a sane forenoon, and her Mr. Conlogue had. Foster-Milburn dishes were all done and she was ready to sit down and talk with me indefinitely. Before I could get away the hotels had all closed their lunch hours, too, running as they were on the new time, and I went dinnerless. "At the hotel tonight there were several traveling men registering calls for the morning, as usual. Some wanted to be called at seven o'clock to get the 6.30 train and others at six o'clock to make the 6.30 trolley for Lewiston. One man said he would need to be called at nine to have plenty of time to get away on the 7.45 express, because the old time town where he was going was reached by a new time electric service, and he wanted to see

AROOSTOOK BRANCH OF THE NEW ENGLAND HOME FOR LITTLE WANDERERS

From April 1st, 1919, to April 1st 1920, applications for help were received from 40 families involving one hundred and forty-eight children from all parts of Aroostook County. It is interesting to note the causes because of which the children needed help. In fifteen cases, death of one parent was the chief cause, the desertion of a parent figured prominently in seven cases—bad home conditions usually followed in either of these cases. Illegitimacy was the dominant factor in six cases; divorce or separation in two families; feeble mindedness, tuberculosis, other illness and behavior problem of the child were also important as causes. It is interesting to note that alcoholism appeared as a cause for need of help in only one family. In only seven cases was it necessary to break up the family. Nine families required the assistance of the State Agent of the board of children guardians or of a local branch of the Red Cross and were referred to those agencies. Five families were given advice or some temporary aid in their own homes which relieved their situation. In two cases, relatives were found to care for children where parents had died or were unable to provide for them.

On April 1st, 1919, there were 12 children in the care of the Aroostook Branch; on April 1st, 1920, the number had grown to 25. During the year 19 children have been accepted for care but later two were discharged to the care of relatives—two were transferred to the care of the Branch Office at Waterville, one was married and one was sent to the Central Office for prolonged medical treatment. Of the 25 children in care April 1st, 1920, 12 are in boarding homes, seven are in free homes, five are with relatives under supervision and one is in a wage home. The routine physical examination has been given to all the children accepted and the physical defects have been corrected; that is, four children have had operations for the removal of tonsils and adenoids; the dentistry of six children has been completed; two of the children have had glasses. Two children who were mentally below normal have been sent to the Study Home in Boston for mental examination and observation. Following diagnosis they were placed in suitable institutions.

Miss Cole expressed appreciation particularly for the work and time given by the various dentists, doctors and hospitals of the County. Many of them have been co-operative and without remuneration.

The agent always finds it difficult to secure suitable homes in which to place the children. During the year, applications have been received from 33 homes where they wish to take children. Only 20 of these have been approved; 32 have been disapproved and 22 withdrawn.

The work of the Aroostook Branch has increased very rapidly in the past two months. It is probable that a second worker will be needed in the fall.

Miss Cole, who has been the special agent for the work of the Aroostook County Branch since it was established, Nov. 1st, 1918, is leaving in a few days to take charge of the branch which has its headquarters in Waterville. Her place in Aroostook will be filled by Miss Laura E. Klippel of Salem, Mass. Miss Klippel has had quite a wide experience in both teaching and social work. She is a graduate of the Salem Normal School, she taught several years, Porto Rico having been one field of her endeavor. She has taken special courses at the New York School of Philanthropy. For the past year and a half she has been working with the New England Home for Little Wanderers in the Boston office and in the Branch at Pittsfield, Mass.

AMUNDSEN ENDS POLE HUNT IN ICE

The Amundsen polar exploration party in the steamship Maud is ice-bound at the mouth of the Kolyma river, Siberia, and awaiting an opportunity to sail southward, it was indicated in radio dispatches made public at the navy department.

Amundsen, who found the South pole, apparently had abandoned his attempt to reach the north pole.

Gone Since September, 1918

The expedition left Dixon island in the White sea in September, 1918, and had not since been heard from until the navy radio station at Cordova, Alaska, established communication with the party recently. The first message from Amundsen was picked up at Cordova on March 25 from the station on St. Paul's island. It said: "St Paul reports S O S from Russian station at Anirada, stating Amundsen expedition ice-bound in Kolyma river (Siberia) and requesting we handle important dispatches."

Later radio messages were interchanged between Amundsen and his family in Norway, but no information regarding the condition of the members of the expedition or the reasons for turning back were given.

A dispatch received in answer to a message to the Cordova station asking for all available information regarding the polar party, said a messenger had started south and that Amundsen intended to take the steamer Victoria at Nome, Alaska, for Seattle, but that the time would depend on when the expedition could get clear of the ice. This message came from the Anirada, Siberia station, several hundred miles from the mouth of the Yokyma river.

Officials at the navy department said it was probable that the Maud still was ice-bound in the Kolyma river and that a party had been sent over land to the trading post radio station on Anirada bay to establish communication with the world. It was not considered probable that the explorer had been able to get the Maud around to Anirada through the ice.

WISE PATRONS

WISE TEACHERS

By a Country Woman

Somewhere in America there is a school, and what a school! Recently one of my boys received a letter from a friend of his who thinks he is being educated there, and therefore presents his person daily within its walls.

"We have dropped grammar in our grade and have took up, civics," wrote the lad.

Think of it! A child who murders the King's English in this manner is allowed to drop grammar. However, I was not surprised, for I had once sent my children to that same school and had soon discovered that I must take them away.

Grammar is more neglected than most studies, but in none is there thorough teaching. The dominant idea seems to be to get over as much ground as possible in the shortest possible time, whether the lessons are learned or not.

Not only is the teaching poor but the discipline is more than lamentable. Teachers have no respect for children and receive none from them. Throwing paper wads, laughing, whispering, a continual performance of small misdeeds, is a matter of course. In one room especially—fourth and fifth grades—there seems to be time for little except disorder followed by merciless thrashings, administered whenever the teacher is sufficiently enraged.

Not only are the children failing to get any benefits from their studies, but they are forming habits of indolence, impudence, and lack of application. The inevitable result is that these boys and girls are growing into men and women who will be unfitted to fill the desirable positions of the business world. Yet in a few years most of these children will have to make their own way in the world.

When we look for causes behind the abominable conditions, what do we find? The teachers in the school were selected in haste at the last minute. Out of the five of them, the principal and primary teacher were the only ones that had gone farther than the seventh grade, or had had any experience or training in teaching. Of course a great deal could not be expected from such a staff. The building is very crowded, and poorly equipped. Ventilation is bad and heat not properly regulated, with the immediate and natural result that colds and sickness prevail unduly among the children.

Fundamentally the conditions are the fault of the parents. Instead of going straight to the root of things and electing suitable trustees, who appreciate the value of education; instead of seeing that these trustees live up to their responsibilities, the parents are forever mouthing about the poor facilities of the school and blaming the teachers. They do so much of this faultfinding that little energy is left for reconstruction, and year after year the school drags along in the same old way.

Let us follow the example of other rural districts and secure as good schools for our country boys and girls as are to be found anywhere. We must not accept teachers who have failed elsewhere, we must not accept teachers who are thrust on us because their parents are residents of the district. We must demand good teachers, make a real search for them, pay them good salaries. Once we have secured a corps of well-trained teachers and are steadfastly supporting them in their efforts, the other things that we desire and need will follow.

(Editor's Note: The Editor's comment on this article is that the school patrons themselves are to blame if schools are not what they should be. No use shouldering the blame on school directors—the patrons elect the directors. Wise patrons will elect wise directors, who will hire wise teachers. But salaries must first be teachers to the profession.)—Farm Journal.

DECLARES WEALTH IS CORRUPTING AMERICA

William F. Fitzgerald of the banking firm of Fitzgerald, Hubbard & Co. declared that the great amount of wealth in America today was corrupting politics, devitalizing American manhood and destroying the ambition of the youth of the nation.

"Prosperity makes fools," he said "and the country was never more prosperous than it is today. There is a selfish spirit here in New England. The whole political situation is handled by selfish, money-grabbing methods. These fraudulent, swindling methods are jeopardizing the savings of the people. Today if you want legislation you have to buy it. You can't accomplish results without paying for them. We have got to have protection."

Swift & Company Does Not Control Its Raw Material

Other industries can buy their raw materials according to need or judgment, and set a selling price. They need manufacture only what they can sell at their price.

Cotton, wool, wheat, lumber, iron, steel, and other non-perishables, can be held either by their producers or their users until needed.

But live stock comes to market every day in fluctuating quantities from scattered sources, wholly uncontrolled and at times without regard to market needs.

An immediate outlet must be found for the perishable products, at whatever price, as only a very small proportion can be stored.

No one can foresee or stipulate what they shall bring; prices must fluctuate from day to day to insure keeping the market clear.

Only the most exacting care of every detail of distribution enables Swift & Company to make the small profit from all sources of a fraction of a cent per pound, necessary for it to continue to obtain capital and maintain operations.

Los Angeles Woman Suffered Six Years From Rheumatism—Soon Relieved By Tanlac.

"I had rheumatism so bad that life was simply miserable for me, but Tanlac has entirely overcome my trouble," said Mrs. Martha Asbach, of 2226 1/2 Duane St., Los Angeles, Cal. "For the past six years I was in such a wretched condition I can hardly understand how I held out as long as I did," she continued. "I had rheumatic pains in my knees so bad that it was impossible for me to step up or down the stairs, and my hands were so swollen and stiff it was all I could do to hold the broom or dishes. At night I simply ached all over so bad I could not sleep, and, in fact, I suffered all the time night and day. I became very nervous and worried so much over my condition that I became very despondent.

"I tried all the medicines I could hear of but none of them did me any good until I got Tanlac. I was overjoyed to find that it more than met my expectations. All signs of the rheumatism has left me and I am back doing my housework for the first time in several years. My nerves are as steady as they can be and I sleep all night long and never wake up till morning. I haven't felt so fine in years and it certainly is a pleasure for me to tell everybody about Tanlac."

evil Djinn who take the form of sandstorms and hot winds to overwhelm exhausted travelers.

In spite of the new French road between Rabat and Marrakech, the memory of such tales rises up insistently on stony stretches of the road. As long as the road runs in sight of the Atlantic breakers, they give the scent freshness and life; but when it bends inland and stretches away across the wilderness the sense of the immensity and immobility of Africa descends on one with an intolerable oppression.

The road traverses no villages, and not even a ring of nomad tents is visible in the distance on the wide stretch of arable land. At frequent intervals our motor passed a train of laden mules or a group of peasants about a well, and sometimes, far off, a fortified farm profiled its thickest angle towers against the sky, or a white koubba floated like a mirage above the brush; but these rare signs of life intensified the solitude of the long miles between.

At mid-day we were refreshed by the sight of the little oasis around the military post of Seattle.

MOST EFFECTIVE AND ECONOMICAL

An expert pharmacist says that the best treatment he knows of for those whose blood is poor, nerves are weak, livers torpid, or whose systems are generally rundown, is: Hood's Sarsaparilla before eating, Peptiron after eating, and Hood's Pills as necessary.

The ingredients of these medicines are indicated, he says, in most cases of blood impurities, nervousness, pale skin, constipation, and are prescribed every day by physicians who have long known their efficacy. They are put up for physicians in preparations whose formulas are similar to those of Hood's Sarsaparilla, Peptiron and Hood's Pills, but these already prepared medicines so combine them as to have superlative merit and to be the most effective and economical preparations in which to take them.

Hood's Sarsaparilla, Peptiron and Hood's Pills are products of the C. I. Hood Co., Lowell, Mass., and form their Triple Combination Treatment.

A four days' poll taken by the Bangor Daily News indicates that a very large majority of the people are opposed to the so-called "daylight saving" scheme, whereby the public is asked to fool itself by setting the clocks ahead one hour, so that work beginning and ending that much earlier, there may be more playing or loafing time in the afternoon and evening.

A letter from Portland dated May 7 says, "We are having a very backward spring here, the weather is cold, and we have not had any warm days. There has not been any planting to any extent, with the exception of peas, and the excess of rain has made it almost impossible to get on low ground," which goes to show that Aroostook is still the "Garden of Maine."

ENGLISH VIEW OF OUR WOMEN

To say of the American woman that she is mid-Victorian seems at first sight a paradox, says the Manchester, Eng., Guardian. Those, indeed, who have only seen her boundless activities in France or who know her only as a tourist in Europe must regard her as the incarnation of modern energy.

At the same time Dickens's picture of her remains true today—so true that it is almost startling.

Side by side with the woman of action is the woman of feminine accomplishment.

Side by side with an awakening sense of the world's realities is an artificiality that dates back to the 60's.

Side by side with vigor and a capacity for getting there is a curious timidity which makes it essential for one American woman to do what the other American woman is doing.

Coupled with practicality is sentimentality, with clear sightedness, emotionalism.

The woman of action stands out in greater contrasts to the feminine woman in that both are so well marked. In one sense women take a great part in American public life.

There is a woman judge, for instance, while the number of social workers is on a scale commensurate with the size of the United States.

The woman voter has long since ceased to cause excitement, though it is perhaps characteristic that among women voters there still exists an anti-suffrage party.

Women are beginning to be employed in all sorts of executive work and a woman who wants to work is surer of auspices of our High School seniors, a hearing in America than in England.

Also—now, of course, more than ever—women have much more money at their disposal than have English women generally. In a country where money is perhaps more of a standard than in countries where class distinctions take a greater place this alone enhances the position of the American woman.

At the same time, and in spite of appearances, there is not the same equality between the sexes as is the case in our own country. For one thing, too little is expected of the American woman. Hers is to receive, not to give. If she gives, she is all the more wonderful, but the accepted standard is that to her shall be given.

The immense possibilities of wealth in America, too, make the woman in one sense the measure of a man's success. If she is beautifully dressed and does smart, expensive things, obviously his business is going well.

No one in America would voluntarily be dowdy. It is argued; no one would willingly keep quiet and do nothing particularly. Therefore a man is expected to spend money on his wife, just as he would spend money on his house or on his gardens.

Most men like the idea of the spoilt darling, because it leaves them freer for those concerns which are their very own. They do not take their wives into their confidence. But many women enjoy it, too, and the ideal of the spoilt darling molds a great many American women into a form which has curious points of resemblance with David Copperfield's little Dora.

In order, too, to become a spoilt darling, what is called "social technique" is widely practised.

SEEDS

What kind of corn are you going to plant this year. You like green corn, of course, but perhaps you have not had much success in raising it. If this is so, then you have not planted my seed. I have a yellow and also a white sweet corn which has never failed to mature for me during the past nine years. The ears are large and sweet and the yield is abundant. I advise you to try some of the seed this year and enjoy your fill of corn.

Just a word about my wax pod pole bean. This makes the best for table and can bean on the market. The flavor is delicious and the pod is absolutely stringless. Seeds of this are scarce so get yours early.

Everything garden and flower seeds.

RESOLUTIONS

The Baptist church at the close of the service Sunday evening, adopted the following resolve and the reasons pertaining thereto:

Resolved, that the Free Baptist church of Bridgewater Center desires to put itself on record as having no fellowship with the Interchurch World Movement for the the following reasons:

It is post-millennial in its attitude and teaching.

It is socialistic, educational and ethical.

It preaches an ethical, rather than a sacrificial, Christ.

It talks more about the Christ who lived on earth than the Christ who died on the cross.

It preaches the moral, rather than the penal, sacrifice of Christ.

It preaches a social, rather than a personal Gospel.

It seeks to save society, rather than the individual.

It makes civilization and not salvation the supreme purpose of the church.

It talks of the teachings, ideals, and principles of Christ, and not of the atoning blood of Christ.

It substitutes the kingdom of Christ for the Church of Christ.

It confounds the gospel of grace with the gospel of the kingdom.

It teaches the kingdom of Christ is to be established by preaching the gospel; while the Scripture declares the kingdoms of this world are to become the kingdoms of our Lord and his Christ only at his Second Coming.

It preaches regeneration, but means regeneration of society.

It seeks to turn the churches into community centers, to be interested in all that may interest the community; while the Scripture demands that the church shall come out, be separate from the community, and be interested in one thing—the preaching of Christ and Him crucified.

It holds out the hope that the world is growing better; while the Son of God declared that it would grow worse and become as it was in the days of Noah.

It teaches that God is the Father of all men.

It teaches the Golden Rule "intelligently applied," instead of the personal and Second Coming, will give peace to the world.

It has nothing to say about the joys of heaven, and seems to have forgotten to say anything about the woes of hell.

It so emphasizes mere ethics that it opens the door for the Satanic ministry of a bloodless righteousness.

It threatens personal liberty and local church independence.

It is enthusiastically supported by all theological seminaries, professors, preachers, and teachers who do not for a whole Bible as the fully inspired Word of God.

It is modern theology in the guise of evangelical and missionary appeal. It has the hands of Esau, but the unchanged voice of Jacob.

SMUGGLING OPIUM

TO CHINA FROM U. S.

The action of the United States in revoking the law which permitted the export of opium and its variants is a step in the right direction, but it only touches the fringe of the subject so far as China is concerned, says the Pekin correspondent of the London Times.

Official records show that during the first 10 months of 1919 there were imported into America 250 tons of crude opium, which, manufactured in the ratio of seven to one, represents 35 tons of morphia and other noxious drugs. Statistics prove that one ton of morphia should suffice for the annual medicinal needs of all the Americans from Alaska to Patagonia, and it is notorious that practically the whole of the opium entering America reaches China in one form or another.

The American action does not effect the trans-American morphia trade between Great Britain and the far east. Direct export of morphia to China is forbidden except when it is certified as for medicinal purposes, but there are no restrictions on export to America, with the result that huge quantities are passed through that country in bond, shipped to Japan, and there transhipped without landing for Tsingtao, Sany and Korea. From the first two mentioned places it is smuggled directly into the interior, and from Korea by a regular system of motor boats it is clandestinely distributed along the northern coasts of China. One ton of morphia is equivalent to 32,000,000 injections, so it may be imagined what havoc is being done in this unfortunate country by the traffic.

Although import into China has been forbidden by treaty since 1916, it is the fact that Indian opium continues to pour into China by hundreds of tons. It is exported from India to Malaya, the Dutch Indies and Macao in quantities vastly in excess of local requirements, and it is re-exported to Korea, Japan and Japanese ports in China, and from there smuggled into the interior of China. Sir Francis Aglen, inspector-general of maritime customs, speaking recently at an international anti-opium meeting in Peking, stated that the customs, during 1919, had seized 21 tons of opium and four hundredweights of morphia, heroin, etc., figures which represented "only an infinitesimal fraction of what is actually coming into the country." Thus not only are the morphia regulations evaded with complete success, but the whole British policy in regard to the Indian opium trade is being stultified. China is backsliding in the matter of internal cultivation and the demand of the Chinese for foreign opium and its derivatives is insistent. No regulations will keep either opium or morphia out of China so long as these commodities exist elsewhere in the world.

Responsibility for a situation which is resulting in the wholesale process of debauching an unsophisticated oriental people clearly lies in two places—upon the Japanese who, do nearly all the smuggling, and upon us, the British, who permit a growth of opium in India vastly in excess of the local consumption and who allow our own nationals to manufacture morphia and other pernicious drugs in a quantity thousands and thousands per cent. beyond the legitimate medicinal requirements of the whole world. It is a dirty trade all through and for our own prestige, if not for conscience's sake, we ought without further circumlocution, to strangle it at the root by stopping production in India.

GOLD BANDS PROTECT

WASHINGTON MONUMENT

Few persons who have seen the Washington monument, even those who have lived within sight of it all their lives, have noticed that the apex of the monument is surrounded with parallel bands. Such is the fact, however; and moreover, the bands are studded with golden points. The bands are made of goldplated iron a foot wide; and the points are spaced a foot from one another.

For a few moments in each sunny day of the first week of the new year the golden fillet that binds the brow of the Washington monument is visible to the naked eye. Then, the angle of incidence of the sun's rays is such that they are reflected downward to the windows of the buildings north and west of the monument, and the cool, gray surface is seen to be marked with 11 shining lines of gold.

Theoretically, a similar effect could be obtained from some point of observation at each moment when the sun's rays are intercepted by the sloping top of the monument, but only an airplane or a balloon could find the necessary vantage point.

According to the original plan of the monument it was protected from lightning by an aluminum tip that was connected with the metal framework of the elevator. During the very first summer after the monument was completed, however, it was struck twice, and a piece of stone was chipped from the top.

Experts from all the scientific departments of the government were called on to contrive a plan for the better protection of the shaft, and they decided that copper bands, studded with projecting points, would accomplish the purpose.

Col. Casey, who had charge of the work, objected on the ground that the copper would turn green, and that the verdigris would "run" and spoil the appearance of the monument; he also doubted that the copper would have the necessary tensile strength. So the men of science agreed on a number of iron bands, heavily galvanized and goldplated so as to prevent rusting.

The bands are connected with the aluminum point of the monument and the framework of the elevator, and at the base iron cables lead the electricity into a deep well, where it harmlessly expends its force. The protection has proved to be perfect.

SI WILSON MOVED

HIS WELL 30 FEET

There is an old story about the man who pulled up a well and took it to a more desirable location; and another about the man who took up a well sawed it into sections, and used one of the sections for a land roller. They were exaggerations, but the experience of Si Wilson proves that a well cannot always be classed as a permanent fixture.

Si had a well in front of his house. It had never been a success as a well. Si wanted it filled up. One way would have been to haul stones or earth and use the material to fill it. But Si had no team.

So he went at it with a shovel. Working on the side of the well next to the road, he began to dig and to throw the dirt into the well. He kept this up until he had filled it, which was not a difficult thing to do, as the well was rather shallow.

But when the task seemed finished,

Si found that he had made a new hole by the side of the one he had been filling. There was but one thing to do; he proceeded to fill it in the same manner. Of course, this resulted in still another excavation, which in turn received similar treatment.

As all of Si's digging had been on the side of the well nearest the road, the result was that the hole in the ground was finally moved out into the highway.

Life Tompkins was commenting on the exploit one day down at the Corners. "Queer thing Si did," he remarked. "You know that old well that stood in his front yard? Well, sir, he's moved it 30 feet from where it was, moved it clear out into the road." "How'd he do it?" asked another representative citizen.

"You'll have to ask Si," replied Tompkins. "But he did it, sure enough. I saw the well in the road yesterday, and I saw the track he made movin' it. The thing plowed a furrow four feet wide all the way."

URGES PLANTING OF MORE SPRING WHEAT

Reports from the spring wheat regions of a plan for reduced acreage this year caused the department of agriculture to issue a statement urging farmers to revise their planting plans. Weather conditions and a shortage of farm labor have affected the planting, but statistics presented by the department advised increased production because of the poor condition of the winter crop and the continued world demand for wheat. The normal requirements for consumption and exports are about 800,000,000 bushels. Of this amount only 483,617,000 bushels is indicated from the winter wheat this year. The world demand, it was pointed out, will be as great as usual and none can be expected from Australia because of a poor wheat year and the disorganized transportation conditions make improbable the movement of the 55,000,000 bushels Russia has announced she will have ready for export. It was pointed out that the estimated 483,617,000 bushels of winter wheat may be even less because of winter killed fields and indications that the Hessian fly will be unusually active through large areas. The grasshopper menace, the statement also said, is serious in a large part of the Great Plains Belt.

INFORMATION FROM PRESIDENT BANGOR & AROOSTOOK

On Saturday President Todd of the Bangor and Aroostook R. R. issued the following circular letter to officers and employees of the company.

Bangor & Aroostook Railroad Company, Office of the President, Bangor, Maine, April 20, 1920.

To Officers and Employees:—As you have already been advised, the operation of this railroad was on March 1, 1920, restored to the Corporation and I returned to the service of the Company as its President, and in connection with our future operations I desire to call attention of each of you to the following facts:—

During Federal control there has been an enormous increase in Operating Expenses. These must be kept down as far as possible.

This year locomotive fuel will cost nearly three times as much as it did in 1917, the INCREASE being nearly $7. per ton and the strictest economy in the use of fuel in locomotives stations, etc. must be exercised.

The amount paid in wages during Federal control on this road increased over 100 percent, but I regret to say that the efficiency of labor, instead of increasing with increased wages, has greatly diminished. During the past few years we have heard a great deal about the "square deal," it should be borne in mind that this means not only that an honest day's work deserves an honest day's pay but that an honest day's work SHOULD BE GIVEN for an honest day's pay, and it is my duty to say to you that the work of each officer and employee will be very closely watched. Slackers unwilling to do their duty will be dropped from the service and good work will be recognized.

The Transportation act of 1920 emphasizes three factors in railroad operation—the rights and obligations of

- 1—The public.
- 2—The owners of railroad securities.
- 3—The employees.

1—The public is entitled to courteous treatment and good service. This includes patience and politeness to individuals, some of whom are not always reasonable in their complaints.

The public must pay fair rates for transportation and must be treated without discrimination. American rates are the lowest in the world.

The public is entitled to the operation of both freight and passenger trains as nearly on advertised time as is consistent with safety.

The public must assist in the efficient management of the railroad by the prompt unloading of cars which in all probability will be scarce on all railroads for some years to come, and by not making unreasonable demands.

2—The people who advanced the money to build this railroad, including individuals, savings banks and life insurance companies, are entitled to a fair return on their investment and look to us to get it for them. Even with the most efficient and economical operation it will be difficult to secure such return.

3—The employees of railroads in the United States are receiving higher wages, under better working conditions, than railroad employees in any other part of the world have received at any time in its history and the obligation rests upon them to render the best of service. Urgent statements have been made by representatives of Railroad Labor that the work of employees, particularly in train service, should be actually restricted to eight hours per day; many instances have come to my attention on this road where the excess time over eight hours has been caused by the employees themselves, either through indifference or for the purpose of receiving the extra pay at time and a half after eight hours; this is not a "square deal."

URGES U. S. JOIN NATIONS LEAGUE

Secretary James L. Barton of the American Board of Commissioners for Foreign Missions, and chairman of the near east relief, made an urgent plea for the entrance of the United States into the league of nations, and American intervention in Armenia, in Boston.

The speaker was vigorously applauded when he eulogized President Wilson as "a voice crying in the wilderness, for world peace, and right and justice for small nations."

Dr. Barton admitted that for the United States to intervene in the Near East would cost men and money, "but where England and France would have to fight their way, the United States could walk unarmed, because while it is known that England and France are out for what they can get, and have got a great deal in the last 50 years, the United States wants nothing and it is believed that we are going to give up the Philippines."

"Moreover, not only the people over there are suspicious of European nations, but England and France are suspicious of each other. We little realize the strained relations between them, which may break out into violence at any time. The British are accused of selling arms to the Arabs, to drive the French out of Syria, and it appears as if France will not be able to hold that country. The allies are talking of war here, there, almost everywhere."

"It is the duty of the United States, as a great missionary nation, to step in (applause), and the church of Christ has a great responsibility: to teach this function of our government, and to train the people in the principles of internationalism."

Dr. Barton emphasized the strange Providence by which the Dardanelles is today a graveyard of ships of the Allies and their dead sailors and soldiers in thousands "when there was a time when for four or five days there was absolutely nothing in the way of formidable opposition between the allies and Constantinople, for the munitions of the Turks were temporarily exhausted, and they removed their archives into Asia Minor, expecting the advance of the allies, which did not come. The facts of which I speak are proven by official documents found in Constantinople."

Dr. Barton said that the recognition by the United States of the Republic of Armenia is a most worthy step, but it by no means settles the Armenian question, for the "Republic of Armenia" recognized, comprises only the provinces on the Russian side of the border, which have been free of Turkish oppression for 50 years.

FARMERS' GRANGE, 1000 B. C.

Farmers of Babylonia in 1000 B. C. found the temple grange helpful. Tablet No. 150 in the Yale University collection of Babylonian tablets is a carefully drawn lease of farming and grazing land rented out by the Biblical What Belshazzar was doing had been done for nearly a thousand years prior to his era, as other but more mutilated bricks attest. The rent of the farming and grazing land was to be yearly 5,000 measures of barley and 3,000 bundles of straw.

The Babylonian farmer could transact a large volume of business without having to use his money. He could either pay or buy in wool, oil, cattle, flour, dates, millet, barley, vegetables or money. The grange officers arranged this so that the farmer need not go short or be embarrassed if he did not have ready money. In the same way, it lent him money, both with interest and without interest. It loaned him seeds at planting time, or, if he could pay (and the prosperous, self-respecting farmer paid), seeds were given him in exchange for produce brought to the temple to be disposed of.

There are clay records of sheep and goats rented by the temple to the farmer at breeding time; there is a record of a loan of sheep of high grade. Temple animals were branded by a cross, to mark the ownership, and seem to have been the best bred in the country. Farmers were glad to rent or borrow a few and mix them with their own flocks, for a short season. After that, they returned the starred cattle to the temple, and their own flocks were enriched by the transaction.

The Babylonian Grange found a use for all the products of the farm. They passed laws that prevented the waste of anything on the farm. Clay tablets prove that the temple turned over all farm produce in an efficient manner, without interference or help from a middleman.

The farmer took his dates to the temple; they paid him, and resold the dates in the city. If the date crop exceeded the demand and the farmer was left with dates that went dry on him, they were not a loss. One record concerns "the delivery of old dates to the temple to be ground."

Iron hoes were used in pre-Biblical fields. At least a dozen tablets that tell of iron hoes have come down to us, an inventory of iron hoes in the temple storehouse, among them, to be distributed to temple laborers and to farmers.

Indeed, the temple looked after the farmer in a more or less parental way, and the clay records concerning him would compare favorably with any records kept by a rural co-operative organization in the year of our Lord 1920. Legal advice for the temple was his. The temple drew up his deeds, mortgages, &c.

ALLIES WARN GERMANY TREATY MUST BE KEPT

The text of the common declaration adopted by the allies at the close of the work of the San Remo conference says:

"The allied powers have taken cognizance of the letter to Dr. Goepfer (head of the German delegation in Paris) of April 20, transmitting a request from the German minister of war asking that the German government be authorized to retain an army of 200,000 instead of 100,000 men, as provided for in the Versailles treaty, and affirming that this is a necessity in order to maintain order.

"The allies must declare immediately that a proposition of this nature cannot even be examined as long as Germany is failing to meet the most important obligations imposed by the peace treaty and does not proceed with disarmament, on which depends the peace of the world. Germany has not fulfilled its engagements, neither concerning the destruction of war material or the decrease of its activities, or for the supplying of coal, or for reparations or the costs of the armies of occupation. It has neither given satisfaction nor made excuses for criminal attacks of which several times members of the allied missions in Germany have been the victims.

Concerning Reparations

"It has taken no steps to determine as was provided for in the protocol of the treaty, its obligations concerning reparations in order to make propositions with a view to fixing the total amount which it must pay, despite the urgent character that a settlement of this sort presents in the interests of all the parties concerned. It seems to have not even considered how it can meet its obligations when they become due.

"The allies realize the difficulties met by the German government and do not seek to impose too narrow an interpretation of the treaty; but they are unanimous in declaring that they cannot tolerate a continuation of these infractions of the treaty of Versailles, that the treaty must be executed and remain as the basis of relations between Germany and the allies and that they are resolved to take all measures, even, if necessary, the occupation of an additional part of German territory, in order to ensure execution of the treaty. They affirm, however, that they have no intention of annexing any part of the German territory.

Will Invite German Leaders

"At the same time the allies deem that questions arising from violations of the peace treaty, as well as from the measures necessary to ensure its execution, would be more easily solved by exchanges of views between the chiefs of the governments than by note. Thus they decide to invite the chiefs of the German government to a direct conference with the chiefs of the allied governments and request that at the proposed meeting the German government present to them explanations and precise propositions upon all the subjects mentioned in the foregoing.

"If a satisfactory settlement is arrived at on these points the allied governments will be willing to discuss with the German representatives any questions which affect the internal order and economic well-being of Germany. But Germany must understand that the unity of the allies for execution of the treaty is as solid as it was for war, that the only method of taking her place in the world is loyally to execute the engagements to which she has subscribed."

BLUE FOX SKIN

PRICE IS RISING

Like everything else, blue foxes are going up. A good skin of this much prized animal will cost you at least $300.

It should not be confused with the silver fox, which is a phase or variant of the common red fox; the same animal, that is to say, with a freak color (black with white tipped hairs) which may be perpetuated from generation to generation by selection and breeding.

The blue fox in the same way, a variant of the white arctic fox, which has a brown and tawny pelage in the summer time says a writer in the Kansas City Star. In other words its color, which is a dark blue-gray, is abnormal and rare. But, for some unexplained reason, most of the foxes on the Pribilof Islands, in Bearing sea, are of this color.

Before we bought Alaska a Russian-American company held rights to the foxes on the Pribilofs, and from 1842 to 1860 took an annual average of more than 1800 skins therefrom. No care was then taken of the animals, which were wild, feeding on birds and on seals left on the killing fields.

Since 1896 the foxes have been regularly fed in the winters and on one of the two islands (St. George) they may be said to be semi-domesticated. Refuse meat and offal from the seal killing is stored for them, either salted or preserved by drying, and is doled out to them during the cold season when otherwise many would starve.

On the other island (St. Paul) they are helped in the same way, but there they are caught in steel traps for market, whereas on St. George their capture is executed in such wise that they are neither frightened nor hurt until humanely slaughtered, and consequently have become so tamed as to frequent the neighborhood of houses, occasionally jumping in through the kitchen windows.

Their islands are small. St. Paul is 13 miles long and St. George 12 miles. On the latter the foxes are far more numerous largely because of extensive rookeries of sea birds, which in spring and summer afford them a plentiful food supply. Very few white ones are left on St. George, for the reason that they are systematically destroyed lest they impair the purity of the blue breed.

On St. George millions of auks, puffins and murres build their nests among the cliffs, over which the foxes in pursuit of feathered prey climb to places seemingly inaccessible to a quadruped. They store many of the eggs for future meals by burying them in moss. In winter they catch fish, and an occasional dead sea lion, whale or walrus, cast up by the sea, helps out.

All feeding and trapping is done at night. The food is stored in the same building, where, in another room, the skins are stretched immediately after being taken. Each fox before being killed is held up by the tail and examined. If crippled or diseased it is killed. If not full grown or in poor condition, it is released. All exceptionally fine specimens are liberated, because valuable as breeders.

Blue fox farming is now a prospering industry in Central and Southern Alaska, on islands leased by the governments to private concerns. The requisite breeding stock to start with is furnished from the Pribilofs, the purchasers ordinarily paying about $100 apiece for the live animals.

White fox furs have been much in fashion during the last three or four years, and though far cheaper than the blue skins, they now command a far higher price than formerly.

PLOT TO WRECK

GERMAN LINERS

Evidence has fallen into the hands of officials of the United States government that points at deliberate attempts to practice sabotage on former German liners and cargo ships now being operated under the United States flag.

Investigation of the circumstances surrounding the mysterious accidents or near accidents which have occurred on a number of steamships within the past two months are now being carried on by the State Department and the United States Shipping Board.

Suspect Germans and Radicals

Similar clues are being followed by Great Britain and the present suspicions indicate that either Germans or the more radical elements of the International Seamen's Union are responsible for the organized effort to disable merchant marine facilities.

The four most aggravated cases which are being considered involve three American vessels and the Imperator, which has been flying the flag of the Cunard line since she was turned over to England by the United States. The United States ships are the George Washington, on which President Wilson traveled to and from the peace conference, and the cargo carriers Moccasin and Callao.

Wide publicity was given the tribulations of the Imperator when, on her trip to Europe early in March she developed a mysterious list while at sea which her officers and crew were unable to remedy. Official explanations at the time were that there had been some defect in her electrical control machinery, but private advices received by officials of this government indicate that the trouble was of an entirely different nature and of such a character that it could only have been caused by the deliberate intent of an individual who meant to do damage to the giant liner.

Time Bombs in Ship's Hold

Of the three American vessels the most serious damage was done to the Moccasin, which turned turtle and sank in the Erie basin a short time ago. No cause for the accident could be found until divers went down and found that her seacocks had been opened and in some instances so damaged that they could not be closed. A disaster which would have been more costly in the number of lives lost was averted aboard the George Washington on one of her recent trips, when a number of bombs timed to explode while she was at sea were found in her hold prior to her departure from port. The most recent serious incident is that of the Callao, which reached Rio de Janeiro in an unseaworthy condition as the result of deliberate tampering with her machinery.

Exposure of the organized plot to bring about such results also was made at Rio de Janeiro by A. T. Haberle, American consular representative. Intercepted correspondence at the South American port showed plainly that the crippling or destruction of United States shipping was the purpose of the writer and others with whom he was connected. The letter and other evidence, which has been placed in the hands of the consular department of the state department, is not clear enough in its contents to show the power or inspiration behind these efforts.

Former Senator Chauncey M. Depew, guest at a dinner given by the Montauk Club of Brooklyn in honor of his 86th birthday anniversary, which he celebrated April 23, made an address in which he touched on the high lights in his career as a public man, with some philosophical observations on events, men and their influence on his history.

Mr. Depew skipped lightly from Napoleon to Commodore Vanderbilt, to the Kaiser, to Christianity, to truth to Washington, Lincoln, Roosevelt and Henry Ford; back again to Susan B. Anthony and Paul the Apostle, and then forward to Dana and Greeley. He touched also on the Monroe Doctrine, James Watt, Patrick Henry, and finally on the church and school, with a long dissertation on centennials and their lessons.

His Lifelong Philosophy

Mr. Depew told how the chance remark of a friend who had lost his all in the panic of 1873, had inspired and encouraged him in the "down" times of his ups and downs. This man, cocking his hat back of his head, had taken a deep breath and said: "Chauncy, the world has always gone around and it always will go around." That Mr. Depew said, had been his philosophy ever since.

He spoke of his meeting with the Kaiser many years ago when the former German war lord was a youth, and likened him to a man with a "cog loose in his machinery." Happily for the United States, he said, it had three practical idealists, Washington, Lincoln and Roosevelt.

Touching upon the number of centennials that came this year, he declared the greatest of these was the tercentenary of the landing of the Pilgrims. They planted the seed and the "whole world and all its peoples are richer and happier for its fruits," said he.

RESPONSIBILITY FOR

EX-KAISER ON DUTCH

Responsibility for the continued residence in Holland of former Emperor William of Germany was placed squarely and exclusively on the Netherlands government in a note sent by Premier Lloyd George of Great Britain on March 24, and published for the first time in the Orange Book containing documents relating to the demanded extradition of Count Hohenzollern. Mr. Lloyd George's note says:

"The allied governments have learned of the royal decree assigning the former Emperor a definite place of internment in Utrecht, this decree being accompanied by an undertaking by the Netherlands government to assume complete responsibility for the custody of the former emperor and control of his correspondence and relations with the outside world."

The note pointed out that William, in spite of precautions, is "a very serious danger so long as left within 40 kilometers of the German frontier and is a potential centre of reactionary propaganda and a constant menace to the peace of Europe."

WOMAN SICK TWO YEARS TELLS HOW SHE GOT WELL

Miss G. I. Baird of 30 Glenville Ave., Allston, Mass., writes: "I have been sick almost two years, had four doctors with little or no relief. I was growing thin every day, went from 128 to 111. I was so discouraged I didn't know what to do. One night, about three weeks ago, I looked up a paper and saw your Dr. True's Elixir, Family Laxative and Worm Expeller advertised. I made up my mind I had worms, and the next day bought a small bottle of Dr. True's Elixir. I was surprised at the result, stomach worms came a finger long, so much alive, that looked as though it was just the skin of worms. The day before I took Dr. True's Elixir I thought I should go wild with the crawling in my stomach. I feel like a new person, all my friends say I look as much better. I wouldn't have believed anyone could feel so much better in such a short time. I can't give your medicine credit enough.

Signs of worms: Offensive breath, swollen upper lip, sour stomach, deranged stomach, occasional gripings and pains about the navel, pale face of leaden tint, eyes heavy and dull, twitching eyelids, itching of the nose, itching of the rectum, sweet, dry cough, grinding of the teeth, red points on the tongue, starting during sleep, slow fever. Dr. True's Elixir, The Family Laxative and Worm Expeller, its mines are producing as much coal as in the year before the war.
